Lausche Pledges No New Taxes For Ohioans

Dem Swaps Jobs With Herbert

Short Talk Given At Inauguration

COLUMBUS, Jan. 10 — A specific pledge of no new taxes was voiced by Gov. Frank J. Lausche this afternoon as he took the oath of office for a second time.

Lausche, the man who came back after two years' absence from the governor's chair, promised:

"Without imposing new taxes and within the limitations of the moneys that are available, we shall endeavor to meet problems of our state so as to make certain that the greatest progress possible will be realized."

The bushy-haired, 53-year-old Democrat, son of Slovenian immigrant parents, received his oath from Ohio Chief Justice Carl V. Weygant to climax the hour-long ceremonies.

His commission was handed to him by the outgoing governor, Thomas J. Herbert, with whom he again swapped jobs. This time it will be Herbert—who two years ago ousted Lausche as governor—who returns to Cleveland to practice law after a vacation with his family in Florida. Lausche is the state's 57th chief executive and is starting the 74th gubernatorial term since Ohio was admitted to the Union in 1803.

WITH A "prayer that I may prove worthy of the solemn trust that you, my fellow citizens, have placed in me," Lausche pledged an administration of vision, social imagination, courage and unselfishness in our plans and blueprints.

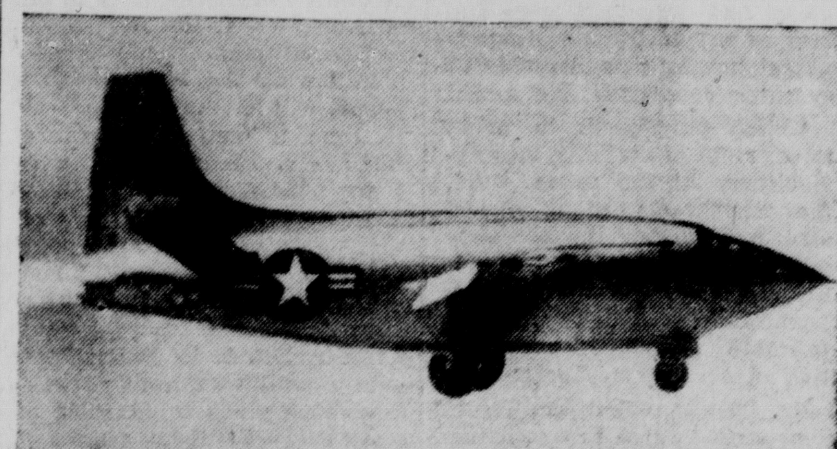

He promised that he would renew his pledge to stamp out gambling in the state when he said:

"Let us also envision the day when the lawless exploiter of the poor will be driven from our state, and when law and order are supreme."

He warned advocates of expanded unemployment benefits that they must be kept within reason by declaring:

"I look to the day when our state government has truly risen to the challenge of adequately protecting all her people against the hazards of unemployment, of disability and of old age."

"And, while we must liberalize these beneficial laws to (Continued on Page Two)

ALL NECESSARY GEAR HERE

Police Radio Installation Expected Here This Week

Receipt of four sets of mobile sending and receiving equipment for the Circleville-Pickaway County two-way radio system will allow installation to get underway this week.

Mayor Thurman I. Miller said Monday he believed this completes all radio equipment designated for the setup here and that a Motorola Radio Co. technician would be in Circleville about Wednesday.

Included among the machinery received Saturday was a 14-foot antennae which will be located atop City Hall. Miller said the antennae will reach approximately 100 feet above street level.

Two radio operation experts from Columbus will lecture both city police and Pickaway County sheriff's deputies on the efficient operation of the radio, the Mayor said.

IF NO UNFORSEEN developments occur, Miller declared, it is likely the two-way radio will be in operation in both the city and county cars by the latter part of next week.

While the exact radius of the radio setup has not been determined, the mayor said it will be powerful enough to cover all of Pickaway County.

The main transmitter will be located on second floor of City Hall. This main nerve center will be connected with control panels in the city police department and sheriff's office.

County sheriff's department will be connected across West Franklin street with the transmitter by remote control. Two city and three county police cars will be equipped with the two-way sending and receiving sets.

Circleville city council authorized an expenditure of $2,640 to purchase its half and the Veterans of Foreign Wars donated $2,700 to the people of the county for purchase of equipment for use by the sheriff.

Chinese Reds Claim National Army Whipped

NANKING, Jan. 10—The Chinese Communist radio claimed tonight the "complete annihilation" of some 130,000 Nationalist troops long trapped northwest of Nanking.

The Red victory, if confirmed, would mean the release of thousands of seasoned Communist troops to reinforce a fresh offensive already battering at Nanking's last defenses north of the Yangtze river.

Under the pressure of the renewed Communist onslaughts both in Central and North China, President Chiang Kai-Shek's endangered government intensified efforts to get the Big Four powers to intercede for peace.

Further accentuating the government's deepening military crisis was a claim by the Communists that they now are operating the entire middle section of the strategic Tientsin-Pukow railroad.

As the Communists hammered at the relatively few remaining Nationalist defenses of China's heartland, the government apparently was urging emissaries of the Big Four powers to hasten answers to a bid for mediation.

Authentic quarters reported that the bid was made by Nationalist Foreign Minister Wu Teh-Chen Friday night when he received the Nanking ambassadors of the United States, Russia, Britain and France.

NEARLY $42 BILLION BUDGET ASKED BY PRESIDENT TRUMAN

Air Force Slash Is Now Urged

Truman Urging Cut To 48 Groups

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—President Truman today refused Air Secretary Symington funds for a 70-group Air Force which the cabinet officer warns is necessary to defend America from war.

President Truman in his annual budget message to Congress proposed a $14.3 billion defense spending budget which would halt the Air Force 70-group expansion program and cut the current 60-group strength to 48.

The budget was sent to Capitol Hill after Symington declared in his annual report that the proposed increased Air Force "alone can choke off hostile attack and defend this country from horrors of war, which it has never known."

Mr. Truman's defense recommendations would provide for actual expenditure of $3.6 billion for the Air Force; $5.9 billion for the Army and $4.7 billion for the Navy.

The President, in an unusual statement issued separately from the budget message, declared "the size of the Air Force is better indicated by the number and (Continued on Page Two)

Jap Commander Hears 2 Tars Are Still Alive

TOKYO, Jan. 10—The former commanding officer of two Japanese navy sailors who surrendered last week on Iwo Jima wept today when he was told his men were still alive.

Former Ensign Toshihiko Ono, who commanded an anti-aircraft unit on Iwo, said he last saw the two men on the night of March 12, 1945, when he ordered them to scatter for protection.

Ono was captured by American forces on May 31, 1945, when he entered an American tent at dawn and attempted to blow himself up with three water-soaked grenades. The grenades failed to go off.

Ono identified the two seamen who surrendered after hiding out in Iwo's caves for almost four years, from photographs and commented:

"I can't believe it. I'm so happy I can't express my emotions."

Ono said he last saw Matsudo and Yamakage, the two sailors, when they left a pillbox with a (Continued on Page Two)

1949 BOOM CROP SEEN HIKING COST

$866 Million Outlay Asked To Support Farm Prices

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—President Truman estimated today that it will cost the government $866 million to support farm prices during the present fiscal year—$854 million more than he originally provided.

A year ago, Mr. Truman estimated that the farm support price expenditures for the current fiscal year which ends June 30 would be only $12 million. In August, he raised his estimate to $316 million.

However, in his final report today on 1949 fiscal year expenditures, the President revealed that the actual cost of farm supports will exceed his August estimate by $550 million.

At the same time, the President told Congress that production of cotton, wheat and corn in 1949 "will probably again exceed anticipated domestic and export requirements." He added:

"If 1949 production should equal the magnitude of the 1948 crops, expenditures of the Commodity Credit Corp. would be considerably larger in the fiscal year 1950 than now estimated."

For fiscal 1950, Mr. Truman is asking an appropriation of $538 million for CCC—the agency responsible for price support outlays.

This is the largest single item in the one billion, 827 million dollar total appropriation requested to run the sprawling Department of Agriculture for the 12 months beginning next July 1.

The President said that, apart from price support outlays, expenditures for agriculture and agriculture resources are expected to be higher in the new fiscal year.

Mr. Truman asked for $290 million to be used in 1950 for conservation incentive payments to farmers. This would be an increase of $126 million over the sum earmarked for that purpose in the present year.

The new budget would also allow for greater expenditures by the Rural Electrification Administration—an increase for the $283 million estimate for the present year to $330 million.

It provides for an appropriation of $56 million to carry out (Continued on Page Two)

Half Tagged To Battle 'Cold War'

Program Biggest In U.S. History

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—President Truman today submitted to Congress a record peacetime budget of almost $42 billion calling for the expenditures of $21 billion to prosecute the "cold war" against Russia.

He promised a continuance of this nation's "firm policy" toward the Soviet Union, bolstered by a new American "lend-lease" program in which military supplies would be furnished to friendly anti-Communist nations.

The President closed his budget message with these words: "The responsibilities of free men match the personal rights and political freedoms which are theirs. The budget of the United States reflects our power for freedom and the advancement of mankind in our country and in the world."

He urged also that funds be provided to carry out his "fair deal" program at home, including medical aid for millions, more housing, greater Social Security benefits, financial aid to states for schools, reclamation, flood control and agriculture.

IT ALL ADDED up to the greatest spending program in the nation's peacetime history, totaling $41.9 billion for the 1950 fiscal year beginning July 1.

The President said it was necessary because of America's great responsibilities and the "desires of our people" for greater social progress. The amount exceeded requirements for this year by $1.7 billion.

Furthermore, he predicted, government spending would increase still further "in future years" and the nation would go "into the red" unless taxes were increased.

He foresaw a deficit of $600 million for the current 1948 fiscal year ending June 30 "instead of the budget surplus of nearly $5 billion estimated last January."

This was due in major part, he stated, because of the almost $5 billion tax cut voted last year by the Republican 80th Congress. (Continued on Page Six)

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10 — Mrs. Dorothy Fulheim believes the United States faces neither a depression nor a war in the immediate future.

So stated the radio commentator and news analyst here yesterday in a talk on "The Trend of Democracy."

Israel Again Refuses Accept British Protest

TEL AVIV, Jan. 10—Israel for the second time rejected today a British protest over the shooting down of five Royal Air Force planes near the Egyptian-Palestine border.

The British consul-general in Haifa made a second attempt to deliver the complaint. It was turned down on the grounds it is not addressed to Israel as a sovereign government.

British warships and troops are poised near Israel's borders in a "show the flag" demonstration against the aerial incidents.

The Israeli cabinet, following a Tel Aviv meeting last night was reported preparing to ask the United Nations Security Council to regard Britain as a belligerent in the Palestine conflict.

London diplomatic circles said that Britain likewise will bring the new dispute before the 11-nation council at Lake Success. The British cabinet scheduled a meeting to discuss what has been termed an "extremely grave" state of affairs.

THE HEIGHTENING Israeli-British friction cast a shadow over the Jewish-Egyptian armistice talks which are to begin Wednesday on the Isle of Rhodes.

The negotiations will be under the auspices of UN Mediator Ralph J. Bunche, who has warned that the Palestine cease-fire now in effect applies equally to the British as well as to Arabs and Jews.

Bunche, on his departure yesterday from New York, expressed optimism over the forthcoming peace talks. He said he had ordered an on-the-spot inquiry (Continued on Page Two)

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10—Some 300 Cleveland movie patrons apparently take their motion pictures quite seriously.

Approximately that number of movie-goers sat tight in their seats yesterday in the State theatre while firemen battled a small blaze in the theatre switchboard.

Informed of the fire, the patrons nevertheless stayed in the theatre, evidently encouraged by one of the songs in the musical picture, "Words and Music," which was showing. The song—"Everything's Gonna Be All Right."

Truman's 'Fair Deal' Program Would Cover Welfare, Security, Housing And Education

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—President Truman estimated today that his "fair deal" program for average Americans will cost $3,160,000,000 in Fiscal 1950.

Mr. Truman asked Congress for $2,358,000,000 for social welfare, health and security; $338,000,000 for housing; and $414,000,000 for education and general research.

The President coupled his recommendation for the construction of 1,050,000 low-rent units in the next seven years with a realistic report on the present housing picture. He said:

"In the past three years, housing construction has risen to the level it took six years to reach after World War I.

"Conversions of older houses have also increased the housing supply, and extensive repairs and modernization have improved housing standards.

"As a result, many of the most acute emergency needs, especially veterans, have been met, and the number of families compelled to live with others or to make other temporary arrangements has been reduced."

He declared, however, that "we still have a long way to go," and made these recommendations:

"Slum clearance and urban development: $100 million a year for five years in federal grants, plus loan authorizations of $25 million for Fiscal 1950 and large-er authorizations in the next four years, totaling $1 billion for the five-year period.

Private housing: $50 million in Fiscal 1950 to expand the government's guaranteed mortgage program.

He emphasized that such mortgages should be confined to financing "the most-needed types" of housing construction, particularly rental units and co-operatives, "to prevent inflationary pressures."

Mr. Truman highlighted a three-point request for an expanded system of social insurance with a $15 million recommendation to start a medical care insurance program.

He said old-age and survivors insurance should be extended to nearly all the 25 million gainfully employed persons not now covered. To finance the plan, he urged $2.6 billion, double the present amount.

In addition, he said the scale of benefits should be "sharply raised," benefits should be provided for women at an earlier age, and higher parttime earnings should be permitted.

The President also urged disability insurance and a comprehensive national health program.

He earmarked $65 million for public assistance and state relief payments.

for fiscal 1950 are set at $22 million, a 100 percent increase, and $9 million more was recommended for federal employees' accident compensation.

The President will send a message to Congress in a few days describing in detail his health insurance program. It was understood that it would be financed at first by a payroll tax of one-quarter cent on the dollar on both the employer and the employee.

In the fields of education and science, Mr. Truman emphasized that an increase in educational standards and an expansion in fundamental research are "important to the continued progress of the nation."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—President Truman estimated today that it will cost the government $866 million to support farm prices during the present fiscal year—$854 million more than he originally provided.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10 — Mrs. Dorothy Fulheim believes the United States faces neither a depression nor a war in the immediate future.

So stated the radio commentator and news analyst here yesterday in a talk on "The Trend of Democracy."

"I don't believe this so-called cold war with Russia is likely to turn into a real war," she said. "Primarily the Russians don't want a war and have not the means to fight one. With a $16 billion rearmament program, I don't think we will have a depression."

Half Tagged To Battle 'Cold War'

Program Biggest In U.S. History

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—President Truman today submitted to Congress a record peacetime budget of almost $42 billion calling for the expenditures of $21 billion to prosecute the "cold war" against Russia.

He promised a continuance of this nation's "firm policy" toward the Soviet Union, bolstered by a new American "lend-lease" program in which military supplies would be furnished to friendly anti-Communist nations.

The President closed his budget message with these words:

"The responsibilities of free men match the personal rights and political freedoms which are theirs. The budget of the United States reflects our power for freedom and the advancement of mankind in our country and in the world."

He urged also that funds be provided to carry out his "fair deal" program at home, including medical aid for millions, more housing, greater Social Security benefits, financial aid to states for schools, reclamation, flood control and agriculture.

IT ALL ADDED up to the greatest spending program in the nation's peacetime history, totaling $41.9 billion for the 1950 fiscal year beginning July 1.

The President said it was necessary because of America's great responsibilities and the "desires of our people" for greater social progress. The amount exceeded requirements for this year by $1.7 billion.

Furthermore, he predicted, government spending would increase still further "in future years" and the nation would go "into the red" unless taxes were increased.

He foresaw a deficit of $600 million for the current 1948 fiscal year ending June 30 "instead of the budget surplus of nearly $5 billion estimated last January."

This was due in major part, he stated, because of the almost $5 billion tax cut voted last year by the Republican 80th Congress. (Continued on Page Six)

Odom Awaiting Weather Break

HONOLULU, Jan. 10 — Capt. Bill Odom waited today for a favorable break in the weather to take off on his projected non-stop flight in a light plane from Honolulu to New York.

Truman's 'Fair Deal' Program Would Cover Welfare, Security, Housing And Education

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—President Truman estimated today that his "fair deal" program for average Americans will cost $3,160,000,000 in Fiscal 1950.

Mr. Truman asked Congress for $2,358,000,000 for social welfare, health and security; $338,000,000 for housing, and $414,000,000 for education and general research.

The President coupled his recommendation for the construction of 1,050,000 low-rent units in the next seven years with a realistic report on the present housing picture. He said:

"In the past three years, housing construction has risen to the level it took six years to reach after World War I.

"Conversions of older houses have also increased the housing supply, and extensive repairs and modernization have improved housing standards."

"As a result, many of the most acute emergency needs, especially veterans, have been met, and the number of families compelled to live with others or to make other temporary arrangements has been reduced."

He declared, however, that "we still have a long way to go," and made these recommendations:

"Slum clearance and urban development: $100 million a year for five years in federal grants, plus loan authorizations of $25 million for Fiscal 1950 and large

er authorizations in the next four years, totaling $1 billion for the five-year period.

Private housing: $50 million in Fiscal 1950 to expand the government's guaranteed mortgage program.

He emphasized that such mortgages should be confined to financing "the most-needed types" of housing construction, particularly rental units and co-operatives, "to prevent inflationary pressures."

Mr. Truman highlighted a three-point request for an expanded system of social insurance with a $15 million recommendation to start a medical care insurance program.

He said old-age and survivors insurance should be extended to nearly all the 25 million gainfully employed persons not now covered. To finance the plan, he urged $2.6 billion, double the present amount.

In addition, he said the scale of benefits should be "sharply raised," benefits should be provided for women at an earlier age, and higher parttime earnings should be permitted.

The President also urged disability insurance and a comprehensive national health program.

He earmarked $65 million for public assistance and state relief payments. General health grants to states for fiscal 1950 are set at $22 million, a 100 percent increase, and $9 million more was recommended for federal employees' accident compensation.

The President will send a message to Congress in a few days describing in detail his health insurance program. It was understood that it would be financed at first by a payroll tax of one-quarter cent on the dollar on both the employer and the employee.

In the fields of education and science, Mr. Truman emphasized that an increase in educational standards and an expansion in fundamental research are "important to the continued progress of the nation."

size of aircraft rather than by the number of groups."

Mr. Truman said the 9,200-plane force he contemplates by the end of fiscal 1950 maintains present strength, minus 700 training planes and 400 Army support planes.

Coupling actual 1950 fiscal expenditures with authorizations of funds to be expended in ensuing years, the air force would receive $4.6 billion; the Army, $4.5 billion; Navy, $4.6 billion.

THESE AMOUNTS compare with unofficial figures for the current fiscal year of $4.7 billion for the Air Force, $4.3 for the Army, and $4.9 for the Navy.

The Air Force would number 412,000 men, one thousand more than current strength; the Army 667,000 against 662,000, and the Navy and Marine Corps 527,000 against 531,000.

The budget confirmed Mr. Truman's announced intention of holding defense spending within $15 billion to help fight inflation and prevent a federal deficit.

Yesterday, Symington warned that a 70-group Air Force is America's only insurance against "horrors of war which it has never known."

Chairman Vinson, (D) Ga., of the powerful House Armed Services Committee, already has introduced legislation to continue the 70-group program and build an 837,000 Army.

Vinson's bill would create a 24,000-plane air armada. Mr. Truman's budget proposals contemplate only 9,200 warplanes by the end of the 1950 fiscal year.

The President indicated he is about to take steps to achieve more effective unification of the armed services, still beset by inter-service wrangling 16 months after Congress ordered merger.

The $14.3 billion defense spending program is $2.5 billion over the 1949 level. It includes $600 million for the first year of Universal Military Training. The President has asked Congress to approve UMT, after having a similar request ignored by the last Congress.

THE NEW budget provides $15.9 billion in all for national defense, counting moneys already available and sums which the Congress was asked to authorize for expenditure in later years.

The President recommended that $255 million be spent to stockpile critical war materials. He said the stockpiling program "continues to be hampered by materials shortages and rising prices."

He disclosed that by June 30, 1950, $700 million worth of critical items will have been stockpiled out of war surplus, and stated:

"Of the total stockpile objective of $3.7 billion materials and authorizations amounting to $2.3 billion will have been provided (by June 30, 1950)."

Other key defense expenditures recommended were:

Veterans benefits $5.5 billion; research and development, $505 million (slightly below 1949 fiscal); aircraft and related procurement $1.7 billion, $500 million more than 1949 fiscal; naval ship construction, $406 million, $100 million over 1949.

The military and naval situation in the Middle East shaped up as follows following a flurry of troops and ship movements by the British:

The Royal Navy at Malta also recalled an aircraft carrier from Tripoli and a cruiser from the Adriatic. One British destroyer sailed south from Cyprus for an undisclosed destination, while another put in at Famagusta on Cyprus.

The Royal Naval transport, Empire Test, was scheduled to leave Cyprus for Egypt this afternoon, but British officials said the movement of troops on and off the vessel was in no way connected with the Palestine situation.

On Cyprus, British marines stood by for possible removal to the Red Sea port of Aqaba in astride Israel's border. Britain has already admitted the presence of marine units at Aqaba, reportedly sent their at Trans-Jordan's request.

Farm Budget Cost Hiked

this country's commitments under the proposed new international wheat agreement.

Mr. Truman could use the vastly increased cost of price support operations in backing up of his contention that the price support structure should be more flexible.

In the budget message, the President recalled that a year ago he had described price supports as a protection to farmers against having to sell under unfavorable conditions. He added:

"His purpose is to bring an element of stability into agriculture. At the same time, they should not place excessive burdens on the treasury and taxpayers or inhibit shifts in production needed to meet peacetime demands and to promote adequate conservation of our soil resources."

Mr. Truman said the Republican-passed farm bill scheduled to take effect next Jan. 1 needs 'certain amendments' to make price support machinery and quota provisions more workable.

The President also asked revision of the CCC charter to restore to that agency its authority to acquire storage facilities. Mr. Truman said this deficiency has "prevented the government from fulfilling its obligations under the price support program."

At the present, only two positions are open those of patrolmen in the police department. Installation of two-way radio necessitates a larger force, Mayor Thurman I. Miller explained.

HE SAID the new patrolmen would not be hired specifically as radio operators because the department is too small to have any one policeman do specialized work.

Each policeman will be licensed to operate the new equipment by the Federal Communications Commission, the mayor said.

Unloaded Gun Kills Boy, 7

CINCINNATI, Jan. 10—Funeral arrangements were being completed today for a seven-year-old Cincinnati boy, killed by the age-old "unloaded" gun.

The shot tore through Meredith's right side and right arm.

The military and naval situation in the Middle East shaped up as follows following a flurry of troops and ship movements by the British:

Two British frigates left Malta for the island of Cyprus, 160 miles northwest of Israel.

The Royal Navy at Malta also recalled an aircraft carrier from Tripoli and a cruiser from the Adriatic. One British destroyer sailed south from Cyprus for an undisclosed destination, while another put in at Famagusta on Cyprus.

The Royal Naval transport, Empire Test, was scheduled to leave Cyprus for Egypt this afternoon, but British officials said the movement of troops on and off the vessel was in no way connected with the Palestine situation.

On Cyprus, British marines stood by for possible removal to the Red Sea port of Aqaba in astride Israel's border. Britain has already admitted the presence of marine units at Aqaba, reportedly sent their at Trans-Jordan's request.

this country's commitments under the proposed new international wheat agreement.

Mr. Truman could use the vastly increased cost of price support operations in backing up of his contention that the price support structure should be more flexible.

In the budget message, the President recalled that a year ago he had described price supports as a protection to farmers against having to sell under unfavorable conditions. He added:

"Their purpose is to bring an element of stability into agriculture. At the same time, they should not place excessive burdens on the treasury and taxpayers or inhibit shifts in production needed to meet peacetime demands and to promote adequate conservation of our soil resources."

Mr. Truman said the Republican-passed farm bill scheduled to take effect next Jan. 1 needs "certain amendments" to make price support machinery and quota provisions more workable.

The President also asked revision of the CCC charter to restore to that agency its authority to acquire storage facilities. Mr. Truman said this deficiency has "prevented the government from fulfilling its obligations under the price support program."

4 Persons Hurt By Pocket Blast

AKRON, Jan. 10—A "pocket explosion" which sent two men and two women to the hospital Saturday still was a mystery to Akron police today.

Deputy Sheriff Sherman Gandee said the "mystery blast" apparently took place in the pocket of a man he identified as Samuel Feller, 52, of Akron.

Feller, from his hospital bed, denied carrying any explosive in his pocket, Gandee said.

The explosion occurred at an auction which Feller and the others were attending at a farm southeast of Akron.

'BOMBSHELL' IS EXPECTEDWest Awaits Red Report Of Marshall Resignation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 — A new avalanche of Soviet propaganda charging Democratic weakness and instability is anticipated as an inevitable result of Secretary of State George C. Marshall's resignation.

To the American public, and those of Britain, France and Italy, there was nothing surprising in his resignation for the state of Marshall's health and his deep desire to step down are well known.

But the controlled Soviet press can put quite another face on the matter and probably will if the Kremlin feels it will be of any advantage to distort the facts.

The incredibly unorthodox performance of Russian journalism never was better exemplified than in the case of President Truman's "state of the Union" speech.

Pravda and Izvestia dismissed it with 45 words of print. They did manage to squeeze the word "imperialist" into this short space but did not bother to elaborate.

Having kept the Russian public in the dark about Marshall's illness, as they presumably have, these organs of government publicity can now advertise his resignation as a "bombshell," with all sorts of political implications and international overtones.

IT WOULD not be surprising to see the event distorted into an alleged "confession" that Marshall's European Recovery Plan has failed.

Soviet commentators also probably will dwell upon the so-called foreign policy "split" between Marshall and President Truman, which the chief executive has repudiated with an almost angry vehemence.

It always will be a mystery to the West how the Russian people—so ingenious, spirited and original in many ways—can allow themselves to be so thoroughly deluded.

The answer probably lies in the simple fact that Soviet Russia has just celebrated her thirtieth birthday. In other words, for an entire generation, the people have been spoon-fed with what the Communist government wants them to know.

Adolf Hitler's Nazi Germany surely proved that complete indoctrination easily can be achieved in the course of three decades. He did it in far less than 12 years and anyone who thinks that all the tenets of Nazism have been exterminated since the end of the war is failing to recognize facts.

One of the strongest arguments in the dictatorship handbook is that of permanency in high office in contrast to the rotating systems of elective democracies.

Inheritance tax was fixed at $55.49 by Judge Sterling M. Lamb in Pickaway County probate court on $14,048.20 left to a widow and son in the James George estate.

A sum of $7,024.10 was left each to his widow, Levena George and son, Robert V. George.

Here's Where Tax Dollar Goes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 — President Truman's record peacetime budget would have to be defrayed in great part through the taxes paid by individuals.

Here is a breakdown in the "budget dollar," as explained by the Budget Bureau:

Where it comes from—43 cents, direct taxes on individuals; 28 cents, direct taxes on corporations; 19 cents, excise taxes; customs and other taxes, eight cents; new taxes, two cents.

Where it will go—34 cents, national defense; 16 cents, international aid and finance; 13 cents, veterans; 13 cents, interest on the public debt; six cents, social welfare, health and security; 13 cents, all other.

Plenty GOPsters
State Payroll

COLUMBUS, Jan. 10 — Democrats took over all elective offices in the statehouse except that of treasurer today—but a lot of Republicans will remain on the job in high appointive posts.

One of them—finance Director Herbert D. Defenbacher—has been reappointed by Gov. Frank Lausche in recognition of his public service career.

The several others are holding down term appointments. George B. Sowers, of Cleveland, will be public works director until his one-year term expires July 31.

State Health Director John D. Porterfield, of Columbus, appointed by outgoing Gov. Thomas J. Herbert in 1947, has until 1952—his is a five-year term.

Others include C. Emory Glanzer, tax commissioner until February, 1951; Frank J. Colopy, administrator of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation until the same time, Civil Service Commissioner Gertrude Jones, Tax Appeals Board Members Robert M. Hance of Piqua and Clyde C. Sherick of Ashland; and the Republican members of the industrial commission, the state utilities commission—including Chairman Harry Miller—and other lesser boards and bureaus.

Another cabinet member will continue to serve—but he is a Democrat. He is Education Director Clyde Hissong, of Bowling Green, whose four-year term extends to August.

Duvall Go-Getters Are Given Achievement Dinner, Recognition

Duvall Go-Getters, one of Pickaway County's most outstanding 4-H Clubs, was flooded with honors Sunday noon.

The club was given a dinner and handed a batch of awards in Ashville KofP lodge hall. More than 50 persons attended the affair stressing achievements of the organization.

Club Leader L. Hewitt Cromley presided at the meeting and introduced Larry Best, county extension agent, who acted as master of ceremonies.

The following program was given: Club history by Bill Speakman; expression of thanks to Ashville Community Club for donation, Bill Courtwright; response for Community Club, Edwin Irwin; talks by W. W. Brownfield, district supervisor extension work in Ohio, C. C. Lang, supervisor of club work in Ohio, and Myrl Thomas, 4H club worker now in school at Ohio State university.

The Go-Getter club was organized June 8, 1934, with Paul Peters as leader. During this year Frederick Barthelmas of the club had the grand champion market pig at the Ohio State Fair, and since that time winning championship awards at county and state fairs has been a habit for the local club boys.

Since 1936 Pickaway County has awarded a banner to the best 4-H Club in the county and the "Go-Getters" have won the banner each year since the beginning with but three exceptions.

OTHER LEADERS of the club have been Roy Kuhlwein, Dr. Curtis Cromley, Harold Hoover and Charles Eversole. Hewitt Cromley has been leader the last five years. Four of these five years, the club has placed first in the county.

Banners, cups and trophies won by the club were displayed on the tables and represented awards ranging from judging to individual hog and steer champions. The club has entered 100 percent in the health program and several members have been chosen the healthiest county boy and one winner, Don Duvall, was judged second most healthy boy in the state in 1941.

Club members emphasize a well-rounded program, taking part in Grange programs, July Fourth celebrations, international stock show, Ohio State Fair, and various county fairs.

3 OSU Students Held In Thefts

COLUMBUS, Jan. 10 — Three Ohio State university students were free or $100 bond today, charged with petty larceny. One of the students is a member of the football team.

Jack Jennings, a tackle, was one of the three. They are charged with taking six T-shirts valued at $1 each, and six pairs of shorts valued at 59 cents each. The affidavits were filed by officials of a downtown department store where the three worked.

The two others arrested gave their names as Clarence J. Eyerman, 21, and Willis W. Anderson, 21, both of Columbus.

Smith Brothers
Cough Up $10

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 — Most people think the Smith Brothers cure coughing, but not so with a Brooklyn judge.

Five brothers bearing the famous name were brought before Magistrate Alex Pisciotta yesterday for participating in an "over-noisy" card game.

The judge smiled when he learned their names and said:

"Well, you aren't the famous Smith Brothers, because there isn't a whisper in the entire crowd. However, as you Smith brothers are all pleading guilty, you can cough up $2 apiece."

Pepper Hoping For Red Accord

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—Sen. Pepper, (D) Fla., "hopes and believes" President Truman will make a new attempt to find means of getting along with Russia.

The senator's conviction was expressed following a Sunday visit to the White House for an unannounced purpose.

Pepper also said he has "some reason to believe that the cold war" will end and that the nations of the world will find the way to lasting peace through the United Nations this year.

'BOMBHELL' IS EXPECTED

West Awaits Red Report Of Marshall Resignation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 — A new avalanche of Soviet propaganda charging Democratic weakness and instability is anticipated as an inevitable result of Secretary of State George C. Marshall's resignation.

To the American public, and those of Britain, France and Italy, there was nothing surprising in his resignation for the state of Marshall's health and his deep desire to step down are well known.

But the controlled Soviet press can put quite another face on the matter and probably will if the Kremlin feels it will be of any advantage to distort the facts.

The incredibly unorthodox performance of Russian journalism never was better exemplified than in the case of President Truman's "state of the Union" speech.

Pravda and Izvestia dismissed it with 45 words of print. They did manage to squeeze the word "imperialist" into this short space but did not bother to elaborate.

Having kept the Russian public in the dark about Marshall's illness, as they presumably have, these organs of government publicity can now advertise his resignation as a "bombshell," with all sorts of political implications and international overtones.

Youth, 16, Held In Mate's Death

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10 — A studious 16-year-old youth was charged by police today with luring a new acquaintance to his home in the plush Wynnefield section of Philadelphia and brutally slaying him to death with a pair of scissors.

The suspect, Seymour Levin, a pupil at a private school, was arrested shortly after the trussed up body of the victim, 12-year-old Ellis Simons, was found behind the garage of his home.

Police said the body was covered with blood from numerous slashings and stabs, and had been stripped and bound with a clothesline. They said the slaying occurred in the bathroom of the Levin home.

Here's Where Tax Dollar Goes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 — President Truman's record peacetime budget would have to be defrayed in great part through the taxes paid by individuals.

Here is a breakdown in the "budget dollar" as explained by the Budget Bureau:

Where it comes from—43 cents, direct taxes on individuals; 28 cents, direct taxes on corporations; 19 cents, excise taxes; customs and other taxes, eight cents; new taxes, two cents.

Where it will go—34 cents, national defense; 16 cents, international aid and finance; 13 cents, veterans; 13 cents, interest on the public debt; six cents, social welfare, health and security; 18 cents, all other.

Plenty GOPsters Left On Ohio's State Payroll

COLUMBUS, Jan. 10 — Democrats took over all elective offices in the statehouse except that of treasurer today—but a lot of Republicans will remain on the job in high appointive posts.

One of them—finance Director Herbert D. Defenbacher—has been reappointed by Gov. Frank Lausche in recognition of his public service career.

The several others are holding down term appointments. George B. Sowers, of Cleveland, will be public works director until his one-year term expires July 31.

State Health Director John D. Porterfield, of Columbus, appointed by outgoing Gov. Thomas J. Herbert in 1947, has until 1952—his is a five-year term.

Others include C. Emory Glander, tax commissioner until February, 1951; Frank J. Collopy, administrator of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation until the same time, Civil Service Commissioner Gertrude Jones, Tax Appeals Board Member Robert M. Hance of Piqua and Clyde C. Sherrick of Ashland; and the Republican members of the industrial commission, the state utilities commission—including Chairman Harry Miller—and other lesser boards and bureaus.

Another cabinet member will continue to serve—but he is a Democrat. He is Education Director Clyde Hissong, of Bowling Green, whose four-year term extends to August.

Duvall Go-Getters Are Given Achievement Dinner, Recognition

Duvall Go-Getters, one of Pickaway County's most outstanding 4-H Clubs, was flooded with honors Sunday noon.

The club was given a dinner and handed a batch of awards in Ashville KofP lodge hall. More than 50 persons attended the affair stressing achievements of the organization.

Club Leader L. Hewitt Cromley presided at the meeting and introduced Larry Best, county extension agent, who acted as master of ceremonies.

The following program was given: Club history by Bill Speakman; expression of thanks to Ashville Community Club for donation, Bill Courtwright; response for Community Club, Edwin Irwin; talks by W. W. Brownfield, district supervisor extension work in Ohio, C. C. Lang, supervisor of club work in Ohio, and Myrl Thomas, 4H club worker now in school at Ohio State university.

The Go-Getter club was organized June 8, 1934, with Paul Peters as leader. During this year Frederick Barthelmas of the club had the grand champion market pig at the Ohio State Fair, and since that time winning championship awards at county and state fairs has been a habit for the local club boys.

Since 1936 Pickaway County has awarded a banner to the best 4-H club in the county and the "Go-Getters" have won the banner each year since the beginning with but three exceptions.

OTHER LEADERS of the club have been Roy Kuhlwein, Dr. Curtis Cromley, Harold Hoover and Charles Eversole. Hewitt Cromley has been leader the last five years. Four of these five years, the club has placed first in the county.

Banners, cups and trophies won by the club were displayed on the tables and represented awards ranging from judging to individual hog and steer championships. The club has entered 100 percent in the health program and several members have been chosen the healthiest county boy and one winner, Don Duvall, was judged second most healthy boy in the state in 1941.

Club members emphasize a well-rounded program, taking part in Grange programs, July Fourth celebrations, international stock show, Ohio State Fair, and various county fairs.

CAMPUS MARRIAGES

A FEW years ago, a college undergraduate student who married was likely to face expulsion. The setting up of a family was an enterprise which must be postponed until after the attainment of a degree and a few years of business or professional experience.

The war-veteran student has changed all that. Marriage has proved, in most cases, a stabilizing influence, and the married students' grades, instead of suffering, actually are surprisingly high. Earnest, hard-working young couples, often with small children, are an accepted part of college life on many campuses.

Freshman students now coming in direct from prep and high schools, are beginning to wish to follow the example set by the older members of the student body. The problems which result are to be discussed at a "Campus Marriage Conference" to be held at the University of Illinois in the Spring. This project is under the sponsorship of the University YMCA, which seeks to help both college authorities and the student body by this means.

The success of campus marriages, like any others, depends largely upon the maturity of character of the persons contracting them. Most of the married veteran students were above the usual college age and had been through experiences which contributed to maturity. The particular circumstances of individual cases still should govern permission for young undergraduates to marry.

HIT AND RUN

ONE of the least understandable creatures of the automobile age is the hit-and-run driver.

It is said that to err is human. Probably human frailty is such that the most careful driver may sometime be involved in an accident for which he seems responsible. At the other extreme, many accidents are caused by drivers who are completely careless, or who have muddled their senses with drink until they can no longer control their cars. Somewhere between these two extremes are most of the drivers in accidents.

But if the driver was human in the error which brought him to a mishap, he certainly abandons all humanity if he then speeds away and leaves his victim lying in the street. The act in such case becomes one of callous brutality.

If the aim of the law were to punish the guilty according to their crimes, it would be hard to imagine a penalty equal in magnitude to the offense of the hit-and-run driver. Since the aim, at least in theory, is to prepare the offender for return to society, it is equally hard to conceive a way to instill humanity in the mind of such a person.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

M. Urnov, writing on "Howard Fast and America," gives Howard Fast the build-up as one of America's foremost literary lights and social philosophers. If you have never heard of Howard Fast, he is a Communist who has had a brush with the law and is therefore a martyr. He has written biography and fiction with a Marxist slant and is now a columnist for The Daily Worker.

Now, I do not wish to devote this space to Fast, but to Urnov, who, writing in a Soviet publication, has this to say about our country:

"While the Soviet army in combat with the Nazi hordes decided the outcome of the second world war, the American monopolists were hatching new political and military adventures. After the defeat of German Fascism, Wall Street openly assumed the criminal role of a new pretender to world domination, and the United States took its place at the head of the anti-Democratic and imperialist camp. In order to substantiate its aggressive aspirations, American reaction let loose a torrent of mendacious, arrogant propaganda trumpeting the 'achievements' of American bourgeois democracy in the past and the present."

Apparently, the United States was not in the last war at all. That was just propaganda! The Battle of the Bulge never took place. We never fought in the Pacific. We never threw the bomb at Hiroshima or Nagasaki. We never spent more than $300,000,000,000; we never provided lend-lease, $11,000,000,000 of to the Russians. No! We came into it only after the Soviet army beat the Nazi horde! The Russians never begged us for a second front or influenced us to reject Winston Churchill's new demonstrably sound plan of going into Nazi Germany through the Balkans, which would have saved us from the perils of the Iron Curtain!

That apparently is what the Russians have been told and believe. They have not been told that we contributed 70 percent of all the expenditures of UNRRA or that we are contributing about $5,000,000,000 a year to reconstruct Europe and Asia.

Nor have they been told that the United States has come out of this costly and disastrous war without acquiring an inch of territory or domain over any people. On the other hand, Soviet Russia has seized more than a dozen countries and has dominated a vast multitude of peoples, many of whom are totally enslaved not only to Russia physically, but mentally and spiritually. Nor have they been told that their country maintains in every nation a spying, subversive, poisonous fifth column which is a direct interference in the internal life of a people. The Russians apparently have been told none of that.

These Russians somehow have been made to believe that the United States is nearing the end of its history. Discussing Fast's novel, "The American," Urnov uses a curious phrase:

"The action of 'The American' takes place in the second half of the 19th century, chiefly in the latter decades, when capitalism was entering upon its highest and final stages—the stage of imperialism."

From casual observation, most people seem to think that everything is proceeding too high to buy or too low to sell.

Every time you hear talk of another international pact you also can hear the impact.

Symptoms Present in Shingles

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MUCH superstition exists about shingles but, to the doctor, there is nothing mysterious about this disease. Shingles may affect most any part of the body, including the nerves of the abdomen. In the latter condition the shingles may cause symptoms much like those of severe abdominal disorders.

For example, there is a skin condition known as herpes zoster or shingles. This disorder is probably due to an infection with a virus. As a general rule, a skin rash made up of blisters is usually present along the course of the affected nerves. However, pain along the course of the nerves may develop before the rash occurs and after the rash has cleared up. The rash may occur on the face, chest, abdomen, or other parts of the body. If the nerves in the abdominal wall are affected and the rash has not developed, the disorder may be confused with certain abdominal conditions.

Severe Pain

The pain in shingles is severe and steady or static, and practically always occurs on only one side of the body. The right upper part of the abdomen is frequently involved. Thus, the pain in some cases may resemble that of appendicitis, kidney stones, gallbladder disease, pleurisy, or bowel inflammation.

A test can be made which determines definitely whether or not the pain is due to shingles. This consists of blocking the nerves in the affected area with a local anesthetic. Another test, known as Carnett's test, is also useful. This consists of pressing on the abdomen, with the muscles of the abdomen tightened or contracted. The pressure will usually cause the tenderness to disappear if the symptoms are due to a disturbance within the abdomen, but the tenderness will not be changed if the trouble is due to shingles.

In shingles, the temperature rarely rises above 100 degrees, the number of white cells in the blood is usually normal, and there are no general symptoms, such as a feeling of sickness. These symptoms often are also present in disorders affecting the organs within the abdomen. With careful study, it is possible for the physician to distinguish shingles from these other conditions.

Most cases of shingles clear up within a few weeks with proper treatment.

Answer: It is not likely that your trouble is due to epilepsy. There are many possible causes for your trouble. However, the cause can be found only after a thorough study by your doctor.

By Emilie Loring

SYNOPSIS
Beckoning Trails is the latest estate of famous mystery fiction writer Molly Burton who entertains lavishly. Her attractive young granddaughter Deborah Randall arrives from Washington for a vacation. Deb's luggage is misplaced. In the suitcase brought her by mistake is the deadly revolver. Her bag containing her diary, a precious document recording some government secrets and much intimate information concerning herself, is missing. Who has it? Molly's guests begin to arrive in droves. Most of the men are scientists working on atom bomb research at the University. Deb senses something sinister when in the dark hallway she hears someone whisper "It's your job to get those papers." She is disturbed to know that Clive Warner, who cruelly jilted her during the war, is a resident guest of the house. Frightened and rushing down the staircase, Deb collides with Tim Grant whom she finds attractive.

CHAPTER FOUR

"EVEN SO, why invite Clive Warner here after his walkout on me?" Deborah asked her grandmother.

"He couldn't find a place to live, all dormitories, fraternities, sororities, boarding and lodging houses are full up. Prexy, blandly ignoring past events, asked me to take him in till he found a place. As my husband, Roger Stewart, was head of the board of trustees and made the Science Center possible, I am considered a sort of god-mother to the college. I didn't want to do it, but the world is full of people who are doing things they don't want to do. Why should I be an exception? I was sure that Clive Warner means nothing in your life or I wouldn't have taken him in if he had had to bunk on a bench on the campus."

"Don't worry about the effect on me. I was in luck. No men in my life wanted. I'm all set to be a career woman. The war rather put that expression out of date, didn't it? Is Clive's wife here?"

"Haden't you heard? He and Odile are divorced. While he was fighting in the Pacific theater she was lonely. As soon as matters could be legally arranged she married the man twenty years older with whom she had been running around. That's the story. What happened to your mouth?" Deborah described the encounter on the stairs.

"Who is he? Another teacher?"

"No. He is Timothy Grant, the son of Roger Stewart's daughter, Cobina, and now co-hab with me to the Stewart estate."

"I had forgotten there was a son. He was always away at school when I visited you."

"He is a scientific engineer like his grandfather. Purposeful, is my word for him. He knows what he wants and is going after it, won't stop till he gets it. Good-looking, isn't he?"

"Super. Wasn't there some sort of family row between father and daughter?"

"Yes, 'Coby,' they called her, had a furious temper. She wouldn't come to Beckoning Trails after her father and I were married. When she married Grant, who was Dean of the college, Roger gave her that charming old house on the campus. After her husband's death she closed it and made her headquarters in New York. Although it has been terribly needed she has refused to rent or sell it."

"I remember it, lovely, velvety, pinkish brick with four tall white pillars, southern fashion, an adorable garden from which there is a gorgeous view of the hill-rimmed lake."

"That's the one. She shared equally with me in her father's large fortune and ownership of the laboratories from which that fortune had come, but this estate was left to me unconditionally. She was furious, contended that it should have come to her for her son. She resented her father's marriage."

"Why? Nothing grubby about your family background and as Molly Burton you had become internationally known as a successful writer of whodunits."

"And how I worked to get there." She closed her eyes and leaned her head against the tall back of the chair. "I was a student at a coed college, just eighteen, when Bill Randall, my professor in English, and I fell in love. We married. Your father came along. Then, as another child was on the way Bill became helpless. We had nothing saved. I lost the new baby. Our living, the care and support of an invalid and small boy were entirely up to me. I had grown up in a family of writers, whatever work I could do had to be something I could do at home. Bill encouraged me to try fiction; at first he could help me. I worked nights when the house was quiet. I had to make good. I was lucky. My first novel made a slight stir."

"I wouldn't call ten printings 'slight.'"

"Heavenly days, how I worked after that. Before my husband died I was able to provide professional care for him. I had counted on our son, your father, as a confident and comfort as I grew older, then five years ago he and your mother slipped away together." She blinked long lashes.

"Why am I telling you all this which you have heard a dozen times before? Good heavens, I haven't reached the three-told-tale age, have I? Talking of my marriage to Roger Stewart brought the memory of what had gone before sweeping back. I admired him, his money meant nothing, I was earning plenty myself, but, we enjoyed the same things, he was enormously proud of what I had accomplished. We were great companions, and Debby, in the last analysis, the good companion is what counts most in marriage."

"That's right. I suppose Coby was jealous of you."

"That may have started it. She and her father had a furious quarrel and he swore he never would see her again. She refused to allow Tim to visit here; that hurt Roger cruelly, he had counted on the boy's following his profession and, in time, heading the Science Center. When Judge Lander, his legal adviser, though many years younger, routed out a scandal in which Cobina Grant figured, her goose was cooked to a crisp. She came to the Inn during Roger's last illness and begged to see him. He refused. I tried to change his mind but he would close his eyes and say, 'No. Don't talk about it.' His physician forbade the mention of her name."

"What has brought the son here now?"

"His mother died a year ago. Recently he returned after four years in the amphibious service—he was a major. He wrote from Washington that now that his mother's income had reverted to him, he would like to know more of the source from which it came, that he had learned from her diary of her bitterness toward her father, that there was much to be explained, that he hoped he and I could blot out the feud and become friends."

"Apparently you have. Does he intend to stay in this town?"

"He has kept his residence here; wants to live in his house. When he arrived a month ago he told me he would like a job at the lab. He was here two weeks. At the end of that time Prexy asked him to head the Science Center to take the place of the man who has been requisitioned by the War Department. Tim requested time to think it over, went back to Washington, and M.I.T., and returned about an hour ago. I don't know what or if he decided. Of course the appointment will have to be okayed by the trustees."

"That's going some for a man his age. What did Henry Lander, your guide, philosopher and friend, say to his coming to this house? Apparently he had it in for his mother."

"He said a lot. 'Don't see him. He is after this property.' The Judge can't dictate to me. He was so emphatic that I wrote Tim Grant to come. He has a sensational service record as a leader and organizer. I'm not so cocky—I wasn't calling you," she declared as a black cocker spaniel dashed from the balcony. "Go speak to Debby."

The dog sniffed at the blue house coat, jumped into the chair on the arm of which the girl was perched, and with nose on his fluffy paws regarded her with eyes shining like jet buttons. She stroked his silky head.

"He's a beaut. Where did he come from?"

"I needed a dog for a model. He was Best of Show."

"Is it to be assumed that he discovers the dead body in the latest story?"

"How did you guess?" Molly B's mouth tipped up at the corners, her eyes shone with laughter. "As I was saying, I'm not so cocky about the desirability of Tim Grant's presence in this house as I was. I am sure Henry Lander will try to block his appointment to head the Science Center. I have a premonition of trouble."

"It is only your plot-nerve turning up. Prexy must think the late Major's arrival the answer to prayer, he probably made plenty of inquiries about him before he offered the job. That college president isn't taking on a pig in a poke. Why worry about Judge Lander? He is too keen about you and your business to risk an insult to your guest, and Tim Grant looks as if he had been around enough to keep his hands off the legal throat if he did."

Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

Many were surprised to learn that the Marshall plan was to resign after we were committed to the Marshall Plan.

But it vindicated those who predicted that the first 100 days of the Truman administration would be exciting. There is some reason to believe that the last hundred will be more exciting.

Any way it cannot be said that Truman and Dewey are not patient. Both waited until after the election pleasantly to announce that higher taxes were needed in state and union.

Still, we are to have another million low-rent houses in the next seven years and if the tax bill works right we should have the low income to qualify.

And the President's request for higher production and taxes has touched a responsive chord. Thousands are planning to work harder in order to give the government a bigger bite of their income.

Un-American Activities Group Expect Its Appropriation Doesn't Seem So "Dead" Now May Be Trimmed, However

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Capitol Hill thinks President Truman made a mistake when he referred to the House un-American activities committee as a "dead" committee.

The indictment of Alger Hiss by a federal grand jury on charges of perjury has served to strengthen the position of the House group, which first brought charges of Soviet espionage in the United States government.

However, it's true that an attempt to abolish the present committee will be made when Congress convenes Jan. 3. In fact, Rep. Emanuel Celler (D), New York, has said that these efforts are going to succeed. The best consensus now is that the motion will be defeated, probably by an overwhelming majority.

Even if a motion to abolish the committee is rejected by the House, an attempt may be made to cripple the group's investigative powers by reducing its funds.

With public opinion being what it is expected to be, the committee's supporters are confident that a sufficient appropriation will be voted the committee, although the funds may be below what the current Congress approved.

● SOVIET "OFFER"—Russian propagandists assert that the Berlin blockade could be settled "very simply," but they make it plain that the settlement would have to be on Communist terms.

The USSR Information Bulletin, one of the principal Soviet propaganda organs in the United States, declares:

"The Soviet government is merely demanding that there should be no second currency in Berlin for a second currency creates an impossible situation in the Soviet occupation zone."

"Moreover, a method has been proposed by which an agreement could be reached without injuring anyone's prestige."

"This method consists of the simultaneous lifting of transport restrictions and the withdrawal of the western arm from circulation in Berlin."

Some Washington observers see in this line of propaganda a weakening in the customarily arrogant Russian position and evidence of a Soviet hope that a Berlin compromise can be effected without injury to Red "prestige."

● SERVICE BICKERING—Inter-service bickering is worse than it was before the so-called unification. To quash the wrangling and achieve an effective merger of the Army, Navy and Air Force, a supreme chief of staff may be created.

Reports have it that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower might take a leave of absence from his position as president of Columbia university to set the military house in order. It is believed the beloved "Ike" could get the services working as a team.

After "Ike" gets the system going, the report continues, Gen. Omar Bradley, now Army chief of staff, will step into the job.

The supreme chief plan would require legislation. Congress is certainly sympathetic to the idea of achieving the unification it ordered more than a year ago. It will probably strip the service secretaries of their many helpers, and give Forrestal an under-secretary.

● MINERS REMAIN INDEPENDENT—Prospects for a reaffiliation of John L. Lewis' miners with the AFL have grown increasingly faint in view of Lewis' latest broadside against the Federation. The UMW chief accuses the AFL of "appeasement" on the issue of repeal of the Taft-Hartley law.

The latest issue of the UMW District 50 News contends that AFL leaders are talking about revision of the labor-management act, instead of fighting for its outright repeal.

Members of the AFL executive council were assailed by the publication as "18 Throttletbottoms," who got their titles of vice president restored at the AFL's recent convention in Cincinnati.

CAMPUS MARRIAGES
A FEW years ago, a college undergraduate student who married was likely to face expulsion. The setting up of a family was an enterprise which must be postponed until after the attainment of a degree and a few years of business or professional experience.
The war-veteran student has changed all that. Marriage has proved, in most cases, a stabilizing influence, and the married students' grades, instead of suffering, actually are surprisingly high. Earnest, hard-working young couples, often with small children, are an accepted part of college life on many campuses.
Freshman students now coming in direct from prep and high schools, are beginning to wish to follow the example set by the older members of the student body. The problems which result are to be discussed at a "Campus Marriage Conference" to be held at the University of Illinois in the Spring. This project is under the sponsorship of the University YMCA, which seeks to help both college authorities and the student body by this means.
The success of campus marriages, like any others, depends largely upon the maturity of character of the persons contracting them. Most of the married veteran students were above the usual college age and had been through experiences which contributed to maturity. The particular circumstances of individual cases still should govern permission for young undergraduates to marry.

HIT AND RUN
ONE of the least understandable creatures of the automobile age is the hit-and-run driver.
It is said that to err is human. Probably human frailty is such that the most careful driver may sometime be involved in an accident for which he seems responsible. At the other extreme, many accidents are caused by drivers who are completely careless, or who have muddled their senses with drink until they can no longer control their cars. Somewhere between these two extremes are most of the drivers in accidents.
But if the driver was human in the error which brought him to a mishap, he certainly abandons all humanity if he then speeds away and leaves his victim lying in the street. The act in such case becomes one of callous brutality.
If the aim of the law were to punish the guilty according to their crimes, it would be hard to imagine a penalty equal in magnitude to the offense of the hit-and-run driver.
Since the aim, at least in theory, is to prepare the offender for return to society, it is equally hard to conceive a way to instill humanity in the mind of such a person.

● SOVIET "OFFER"—Russian propagandists assert that the Berlin blockade could be settled "very simply," but they make it plain that the settlement would have to be on Communist terms.
The USSR Information Bulletin, one of the principal Soviet propaganda organs in the United States, declares:

George E. Sokolsky's
These Days
M. Urnov, writing on "Howard Fast and America," gives Howard Fast the build-up as one of America's foremost literary lights and social philosophers. If you have never heard of Howard Fast, he is a Communist who has had a brush with the law and is therefore a martyr. He has written biography and fiction with a Marxist slant and is now a columnist for The Daily Worker.
Now, I do not wish to devote this space to Fast, but to Urnov, who, writing in a Soviet publication, has this to say about our country:
"While the Soviet army in combat with the Nazi hordes decided the outcome of the second world war, the American monopolists were hatching new political and military adventures. After the defeat of German Fascism, Wall Street openly assumed the criminal role of a new pretender to world domination, and the United States took its place at the head of the anti-Democratic and imperialist camp. In order to substantiate its aggressive aspirations, American reaction let loose a torrent of mendacious, arrogant propaganda trump-eting the 'achievements' of American bur-geois democracy in the past and the present."

Apparently, the United States was not in the last war at all. That was just propaganda! The Battle of the Bulge never took place. We never fought in the Pacific. We never threw the bomb at Hiroshima or Nagasaki. We never spent more than $300,- 000,000,000; we never provided lend-lease, $11,000,000,000 of to the Russians. No! We came into it only after the Soviet army beat the Nazi horde! The Russians never begged us for a second front or influenced us to reject Winston Churchill's new dem-onstrably sound plan of going into Nazi Germany through the Balkans, which would have saved us from the perils of the Iron Curtain!

That apparently is what the Russians have been told and believe. They have not been told that we contributed 70 percent of all the expenditures of UNRRA or that we are contributing about $5,000,000,000 a year to reconstruct Europe and Asia.

Nor have they been told that the United States has come out of this costly and disastrous war without acquiring an inch of territory or domain over any people. On the other hand, Soviet Russia has seized more than a dozen countries and has dominated a vast multitude of peoples, many of whom are totally enslaved not only to Russia physically, but mentally and spiritually. Nor have they been told that their country maintains in every nation a spying, subversive, poisonous fifth column which is a direct interference in the internal life of a people. The Russians apparently have been told none of that.

These Russians somehow have been made to believe that the United States is nearing the end of its history. Discussing Fast's novel, "The American," Urnov uses a curious phrase:
"The action of 'The American' takes place in the second half of the 19th century, chiefly in the latter decades, when capitalism was entering upon its highest and final stages—the stage of imperialism."

Symptoms Present in Shingles
By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
MUCH superstition exists about shingles but, to the doctor, there is nothing mysterious about this disease. Shingles may affect most any part of the body, including the nerves of the abdomen. In the latter condition the shingles may cause symptoms much like those of severe abdominal disorders.
For example, there is a skin condition known as herpes zoster or shingles. This disorder is probably due to an infection with a virus. As a general rule, a skin rash made up of blisters is usually present along the course of the affected nerves.
However, pain along the course of the nerves may develop before the rash occurs and after the rash has cleared up. The rash may occur on the face, chest, abdomen, or other parts of the body. If the nerves in the abdominal wall are affected and the rash has not developed, the disorder may be confused with certain abdominal conditions.
Severe Pain
The pain in shingles is severe and steady or static, and practically always occurs on only one side of the body. The right upper part of the abdomen is frequently involved.
Thus, the pain in some cases may resemble that of appendicitis, kidney stones, gallbladder disease, pleurisy, or bowel inflammation.
A test can be made which determines definitely whether or not the pain is due to shingles. This consists of blocking the nerves in the affected area with a local anesthetic. Another test, known as Carnett's test, is also useful. This consists of pressing on the abdomen, with the muscles of the abdomen tightened or contracted. The pressure will usually cause the tenderness to disappear if the symptoms are due to a disturbance within the abdomen, but the tenderness will not be changed if the trouble is due to shingles.
In shingles, the temperature rarely rises above 100 degrees, the number of white cells in the blood is usually normal, and there are no general symptoms, such as a feeling of sickness. These symptoms often are also present in disorders affecting the organs within the abdomen.
With careful study, it is possible for the physician to distinguish shingles from these other conditions.
Most cases of shingles clear up within a few weeks with proper treatment.

Answer: It is not likely that your trouble is due to epilepsy. There are many possible causes for your trouble. However, the cause can be found only after a thorough study by your doctor.

SYNOPSIS
Beecroft is the palatial estate of famous mystery writer Molly Burton who entertains lavishly. Her attractive young granddaughter Deborah Randall arrives from Washington for a vacation. Deborah's luggage is misplaced. In the suitcase brought her by mistake she finds a revolver. Her bag containing her diary, a precious document recording some government secrets and much intimate information concerning herself, is missing. Who has it? Molly's guests begin to arrive in the dark hallway she hears someone whisper "It's your job to get those papers." She is disturbed to know that Clive Warner, who usually jilted her during the war, is a resident guest of the house. Frightened and rushing down the stairs, Deb collides with Tim Grant whom she finds attractive.
CHAPTER FOUR
"EVEN SO, why invite Clive Warner here after his walkout on me?" Deborah asked her grandmother.
"He couldn't find a place to live, all dormitories, fraternities, sororities, boarding and lodging houses are full up. Prexy, blandly ignoring past events, asked me to take him in till he found a place. As my husband, Roger Stewart, was head of the board of trustees and made the Science Center possible, I am considered a sort of god-mother to the college. I didn't want to do it, but the world is full of people who are doing things they don't want to do. Why should I be an exception? I was sure that Clive Warner means nothing in your life or I wouldn't have taken him in if he had had to bunk on a bench on the campus."
"Don't worry about the effect on me. I was in luck. No men in my life wanted. I'm all set to be a career woman. The war rather put that expression out of date, didn't it? Is Clive's wife here?"
"Hadn't you heard? He and Odile are divorced. While he was fighting in the Pacific theater she was lonely. As soon as matters could be legally arranged she married the man twenty years older with whom she had been running around. That's the story. What happened to your mouth?" Deborah described the encounter on the stairs.
"Who is he? Another teacher?"
"No. He is Timothy Grant, the son of Roger Stewart's daughter, Cobina, and now co-hab with me to the Stewart estate."
"I had forgotten there was a son. He was always away at school when I visited you."
"He is a scientific engineer like his grandfather. Purposeful, in my word for him. He knows what he wants and is going after it, won't stop till he gets it. Good-looking, isn't he?"
"Super. Wasn't there some sort of family row between father and daughter?"
"Yes, 'Coby,' they called her, had a furious temper. She wouldn't come to Beecroft after her father and I were married. When she married Grant, who was Dean of the college, Roger gave her that charming old house on the campus. After her husband's death she closed it and made her headquarters in New York. Although it has been terribly needed she has refused to rent or sell it."
"I remember it, lovely, velvety, pinkish brick with four tall white pillars, southern fashion, an adorable garden from which there is a gorgeous view of the hill-rimmed lake."
"That's the one. She shared equally with me in her father's large fortune and ownership of the laboratories from which that fortune had come, but this estate was left to me unconditionally. She was furious, contended that it should have come to her for her son. She resented her father's marriage."
"Why? Nothing grubby about your family background and as Molly Burton you had become internationally known as a successful writer of whodunits."
"And how I worked to get there." She closed her eyes and leaned her head against the tall back of the chair. "I was a student at a coed college, just eighteen, when Bill Randall, my professor in English, and I fell in love. We married. Your father came along. Then, as another child was on the way Bill became helpless. We had nothing saved. I lost the new baby. Our living, the care and support of an invalid and small boy were entirely up to me. I had grown up in a family of writers, whatever work I did had to be something I could do at home. Bill encouraged me to try fiction; at first he could help me. I worked nights when the house was quiet. I had to make good. I was lucky. My first novel made a slight stir."
"I wouldn't call ten printings 'slight.'"
"Heavenly days, how I worked after that. Before my husband died I was able to provide professional care for him. I had counted on our son, your father, as a confidant and comfort as I grew older, then five years ago he and your mother slipped away together." She blinked long lashes.
"Why am I telling you all this which you have heard a dozen times before? Good heavens, I haven't reached the thrice-told-tale age, have I? Talking of my marriage to Roger Stewart brought the memory of what had gone before sweeping back. I admired him, his money meant nothing, I was earning plenty myself, but we enjoyed the same things, he was enormously proud of what I had accomplished. We were great companions, and Debby, in the last analysis, the good companion is what counts most in marriage."
"That's right, I suppose Coby was jealous of you."
"That may have started it. She and her father had a furious quarrel and he swore he never would see her again. She refused to allow Tim to visit here; that hurt Roger cruelly, he had counted on the boy's following his profession and, in time, heading the Science Center. When Judge Lander, his legal adviser, though many years younger, routed out a scandal in which Cobina Grant figured, her goose was cooked to a crisp. She came to the Inn during Roger's last illness and begged to see him. He refused. I tried to change his mind but he would close his eyes and say, 'No. Don't talk about it.' His physician forbade the mention of her name."
"What has brought the son here now?"
"His mother died a year ago. Recently he returned after four years in the amphibious service—he was a major. He wrote from Washington that now that his mother's income had reverted to him, he would like to know more of the source from which it came, that he had learned from her diary of her bitterness toward her father, that there was much to be explained, that he hoped he and I could blot out the feud and become friends."
"Apparently you have. Does he intend to stay in this town?"
"He has kept his residence here, wants to live in his house. When he arrived a month ago he told me he would like a job at the lab. He was here two weeks. At the end of that time Prexy asked him to head the Science Center to take the place of the man who has been requisitioned by the War Department. Tim requested time to think it over, went back to Washington, and M.I.T., and returned about an hour ago. I don't know what or if he decided. Of course the appointment will have to be okayed by the trustees."
"Head of the Science Center. That's going some for a man his age. What did Henry Lander, your guide, philosopher and friend, say to his coming to this house? Apparently he had it in for his mother."
"He said a lot. 'Don't see him. He is after this property.' The Judge can't dictate to me. He was so emphatic that I wrote Tim Grant to come. He has a sensational service record as a leader and organizer. I'm not so cocky—I wasn't calling you," she declared as a black cocker spaniel dashed in from the balcony. "Go speak to Debby."
The dog sniffed at the blue house coat, jumped into the chair on the arm of which the girl was perched, and with nose on his fluffy paws regarded her with eyes shining like jet buttons. She stroked his silky head.
"He's a beaut. Where did he come from?"
"I needed a dog for a model. He was Best of Show."
"Is it to be assumed that he discovers the dead body in the latest story?"
"How did you guess?" Molly B's mouth tipped up at the corners, her eyes shone with laughter. "As I was saying, I'm not so cocky about the desirability of Tim Grant's presence in this house as I was. I am sure Henry Lander will try to block his appointment to head the Science Center. I have a premonition of trouble."
"It is only your plot-nerve tuning up. Prexy must think the late Major's arrival the answer to prayer, he probably made plenty of inquiries about him before he offered the job. That college president isn't taking on a pig in a poke. Why worry about Judge Lander? He is too keen about you and your business to risk an insult to your guest, and Tim Grant looks as if he had been around enough to keep his hands off the legal throat if he did."

ONE MAN'S OPINION
Many were surprised to learn that the Marshall plan was to resign after we were committed to the Marshall Plan.
But it vindicated those who predicted that the first 100 days of the Truman administration would be exciting. There is some reason to believe that the last hundred will be more exciting.
Anyway it cannot be said that Truman and Dewey are not patient. Both waited until after the election pleasantly to announce that higher taxes were needed in state and union.
Still, we are to have another

Ashville Women's Group Pledges $500 Toward New Organ For Church

Methodist Unit Holds Parley

Women's Society of Christian Service of Ashville Methodist church Friday agreed to pay nearly one-fourth of the cost of a new Hammond organ for the church.

The group, meeting in the church, resolved to appropriate $500 to help pay for the new organ, which is to cost about $2,000.

Mrs. Lawrence Fullen and Mrs. Roy Hedges were hostesses to the cooperative dinner preceding the business session.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Glenn Bickel, president, followed by organ numbers and group singing led by Mrs. Elliot Crites.

Mrs. Crites presented the main portion of the program, entitled "By His Light Shall Nations Walk".

A poem for the new year was read by Mrs. Lena Reid, and Mrs. William Plum presented "Ode to Spring" and "The Old Refrain" at the organ.

Mrs. John Spindler, treasurer to the society, read an itemized report listing all financial transactions of the organization during the past year.

The members set Feb. 26 as the date for a market sale and bazaar, and named April 23 as the date for their annual tea.

The meeting was closed with acknowledgement of cards of thanks from receivers of flowers, condolences and gifts given by the society last year.

Elinor Williams'

Teen Tips

When a girl invites a boy to a dance at her school, should he ask her for a date in return? That's the question in this letter from two students at a girls' school.

"We are two students attending a girls' school. Our class is planning a dance soon and we have invited two boys who are very good friends and go around together. These boys have accepted our invitation.

"Our trouble is that these two boys never phone or try to see us and we don't think this is the right attitude for them to show toward us after accepting our invitation. What do you think of this? Could you suggest something for us to do?"

"Please answer this question, because we don't see why boys accept invitations and then act so nonchalant."

And—Hold everything! The fact that you've invited the two boys to your class dance doesn't mean that you automatically become their one and only dates. It simply means that you like them well enough to want to take them to the dance as your guests and they like you enough to spend the evening with you.

You are right, however, that if they accept your invitation, they should entertain you as their guests in return—afterward. The boys shouldn't accept your dance invitation unless they intend to take you to a dance or at least a movie to say "Thank you." That's a fundamental rule of good manners, boys, for all your life. Ignore it and you're a girl's date-dream.

For tips on the care of dry hair and dandruff, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Elinor Williams in care of The Circleville Herald.

Keep Meat Budget In Line With Penny-Wise Meals

While meat does see-saw in price, the high is still much too high and so is the low. Therefore, how about some stretching exercises in the meat line?

First, try some meat turn-overs, delicious and different. Brown ground meat with minced onion and green pepper in lard. Enclose this mixture in pastry squares; bake in hot oven. Make gravy with meat drippings in pan; season with curry or Worcestershire sauce. Serve gravy on hot turnovers.

For a lamb and eggplant dish that is sure to please, alternate slices of sautéed eggplant, chopped cooked lamb and tomato sauce in casserole top with grated cheese. Bake in moderate oven until hot, and cheese is melted and browned.

Good fare for a coolish night comes easy, if the refrigerator yields some cooked meat. Bake some large potatoes; scoop out centers, then mash well. Add diced cooked meat and, if desired, some sautéed onions or mushrooms. Refill potato shells; reheat.

If you like scrapple, try this home-made version. Combine thick corn meal mush with ground, cooked pork; chill in mold or pan until firm. Slice or cut in strips. Brush with butter; place under broiler unit or burner until heated through and browned. Serve with a tangy tomato sauce.

Veal shortcake is wonderful! Cube veal shoulder; brown with sliced mushrooms (or sliced onions) in lard. Add a little water; cover. Season with salt and pepper, then simmer until tender. Thicken mixture in pan with flour. Serve between hot biscuit halves.

For a tasty ground beef dish, brown ½ to 1 lb. ground beef with tsp. each chopped green

Of course, Marxists believe in the mysticism of "inevitability"; they are more dogmatic than the most bigoted fundamentalist in religion, accepting on faith that the Marxist prognosis must be correct, no matter what the facts may be. And one of their assumptions is that "American bourgeois democracy" has "inevitably" degenerated and is now in its final stage. The next stage is economic disaster, to be followed by a workers' revolution and finally by a Soviet republic affiliated with the mother country, Russia.

All this would not be worthy of comment were it only accepted as correct by Russians. The fact is that a large number of Americans—an increasingly large number of our young people—noting the success of the Russian effort in Europe and Asia, the astonishing lack of intelligence in the State Department, the current inadequacy of American political thought, are turning to the Marxist concept of "inevitability." The fact that the Harold War Cells spread through the highest intellectual strata of official Washington—brought to the surface by the Chambers-Hiss case—cannot be ignored. It must be studied, analyzed, debated and a solution found as to how to re-teach America to Americans.

A detailed map of the Snake river, in Idaho, carved by Indians long ago, has been found on a rock on the north side of the Snake, 20 miles from Nampa.

U. S. ARMY IMPROVES ITS HEALTH

Mortality Rate Shows 30 Per Cent Drop Since 1939

By HENRY C. NICHOLAS
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The greatly improved health conditions of the Army are of particular importance to the young men who are selected in the peacetime draft, as well as to their families.

It may be difficult to convince many of these young men that they are among the more fortunate members of their generation. But this is true, if their Army experience is considered from the viewpoint of their health.

These young recruits will become members of what is now one of the healthiest bodies of men on earth. They will enjoy medical and health protective services unknown in prewar years, superior to those to which even the most fortunate of young men are accustomed in civilian life.

A study made by an insurance company of the mortality and morbidity experience of the Army in 1947 shows the health of the Army is excellent. The improvement shown over prewar conditions in some respects has been little less than sensational.

By 1947 the Army situation had become fairly well stabilized, although we had troops stationed in many parts of the world. Data based on those stationed within the continental United States give a fairly good picture of the situation where the new inductees will serve.

The best evidence of the improvement of Army health since prewar days is found in the sharp reduction in mortality. The 1947 death rate from all causes among troops in the United States shows a reduction of nearly 30 per cent from 1939.

Even more striking is the fact that death rate in the Army from disease in 1947 was 36 per cent below the rate prevailing in 1939.

While data is not available, it is doubted if the armies of any other nation can report a similar favorable showing.

The death rate from accidents has also declined, and in 1947 was about 24 per cent below the prewar level. As for accidents as a whole the figure was cut in half.

This is the more remarkable because of the greater speed required and the greater use of mechanized equipment and airplanes.

A good part of the reduction in accidents is due to the Army's safety campaign. Efforts have also been made to make equipment as fool-proof as possible.

pieces of mechanism almost talk, warning those nearby by sounds or lights that some manual error has been made.

As for morbidity figures, authorities say that care must be taken in interpreting them; that they are actually more favorable than they appear. One factor is the Army policy, which has laid increasing stress on prompt reporting of illness. Another is the much more efficient means now available for detection. Other things being equal, this would tend greatly to raise the recent figures.

Nevertheless, the 1947 figures for the incidence of disease among troops in the United States show, in the aggregate, little change from prewar years.

For the common respiratory diseases and influenza, the rate in 1947 was the lowest recorded since comparable data first became available nearly a quarter of a century ago.

The current rate is now about 20 per cent lower than the 1939 rate. The sickness rate from tuberculosis is almost at an irreducible minimum.

Although the rate for pneumonia has increased, this represents pretty much the diagnosis of virus forms which were not recognized back in 1939, and which are relatively mild.

As is to be expected in a force containing a large proportion of recruits, the incidence of communicable diseases and rheumatic fever rose.

The increase in the latter reflects also improved methods of detection and greater alertness on the part of Army physicians, so that this increase probably does not represent an actual rise in prevalence. The same consideration applies to a recorded increase in neuro-psychiatric disorders.

World War II was the healthiest war in American history, not only for our troops but also for Army animals. Not a single outbreak of epidemic disease occurred among the many thousands of horses, mules, dogs and pigeons engaged in military operations.

IT IS a surprising fact that the excellent health record of these animals under wartime conditions was a contributing factor to the better health of the troops. It became one of the wartime missions of the Army Medical Center to produce for our troops some of the same vaccines which had proved so successful for animal protection.

Much of the gain in Army health reflects the advances in research and treatment in military as well as in civilian medicine during the war.

The Army has been quick to adopt the new drugs and techniques which medical science has developed. To a greater extent than ever before encouragement is given to medical officers to qualify in the specialties, and good contacts have been established with the major medical schools.

"When the service period of these new inductees has expired," said an Army medical officer, "they can look forward with much greater assurance they will enjoy a full and healthy life, than can those who have not had a similar Army experience."

which he has dubbed the "second worst" in history.

Since 1930, only the 1947 and 1948 fiscal year budgets have been balanced.

The President included no funds for the new "lend-lease" program. He said this will be embodied in a future message, but it was reliably reported that the President was prepared to ask $1.1 billion for this purpose.

HERE IS WHAT the President asked authority to spend in his record peacetime budget:

1. National defense—41 billion 300 million dollars, including 3.6 billions for the Air Force, 5.9 for the Army and 4.7 for the Navy. Six hundred million dollars is included to launch a proposed Universal Military Training program.

2. Foreign aid—six billion 700 million dollars, compared to seven billion 200 millions for the current year, but not including military "lend-lease." Of this amount, 4 1/2 billions is for the Economic Cooperation Act; one billion 300 millions for relief in Army occupied areas 136 millions for Greece and Turkey; and an additional 355 million for Greece, Turkey, Korea and China.

3. Taxes—A $4 billion tax increase, largely on corporation profits; an increase of one billion 750 million dollars in employment taxes to cover expanded old age insurance; and another 260 million dollars in payroll taxes for health insurance. Total, six billion 10 million dollars in new taxes.

4. Social and economic program—Two billion 358 million dollars for old age pensions, medical care in insurance program, vocational rehabilitation, railroad retirement, low-cost housing, etc.

5. Anti-inflation—The President again urged extension and strengthening of rent, export and transportation controls, consumer credit and bank reserve requirements, and stand-by authority to impose price and wage controls. He asked $41 million for the stabilization program.

6. Agriculture—one billion 662 million dollars, a decrease of 143 millions.

7. Natural resources—one billion 861 million dollars, including 344 million dollars for reclamation; 481 millions for flood control.

8. 725 million for the Atomic Energy Commission; an increase of 245 millions.

9. Veterans—Five billion 496 million dollars, a reduction of one billion 300 millions.

10. Education—300 million dollars to the states for schools.

11. Interest on the public debt—Five billion 400 million dollars. The President estimated that the national debt would total $251 billion June 30, 1949.

Despite the size of the budget, Mr. Truman said it reflected a policy of "financial prudence" by the administration with an eye to this nation's financial stability and its world responsibility.

Although the President requested authority to spend almost $42 billion in the coming fiscal year, he emphasized that $7.9 billion of this amount has already been appropriated. The 81st Congress was asked to provide $34 billion in new appropriations and authorizations.

The President revealed that he will ask for an additional one billion 250 million dollars for the Economic Cooperation Administration for the remainder of the current fiscal year, exclusive of ECA funds for the new year.

The President recommended an increase in postal rates to help wipe out a prospective deficit of $400 million in the postal service for the 1950 fiscal year. He suggested that an additional $250 million in postal revenue be raised.

THE CHIEF executive pleaded for "urgently needed" legislation to provide "fair laws under which management and labor can develop more fully the opportunities for cooperative production that collective bargaining affords." He reiterated his plea for higher minimum wages.

The President did not repeat his plea for civil rights legislation, but included $500 thousand for a "national commission against discrimination in employment," popularly known as the Fair Employment Practices Commission (FEPC).

He asked for increased salaries for cabinet heads and executive agency heads and assistants and included $1.5 million in the budget to defray the added expense. Mr. Truman did not ask for a pay increase for himself or Vice-President-Elect Barkley, but Congress was expected to give it to them nonetheless.

Of course, Marxists believe in the mysticism of "inevitability"; they are more dogmatic than the most bigoted fundamentalist in religion, accepting on faith that the Marxist prognosis must be correct, no matter what the facts may be. And one of their assumptions is that "American bourgeois democracy" has "inevitably" degenerated and is now in its final stage. The next stage is economic disaster, to be followed by a workers' revolution and finally by a Soviet republic affiliated with the mother country, Russia.

All this would not be worthy of comment were it only accepted as correct by Russians. The fact is that a large number of Americans—an increasingly large number of our young people—noting the success of the Russian effort in Europe and Asia, the astonishing lack of intelligence in the State Department, the current inadequacy of American political thought, are turning to the Marxist concept of "inevitability." The fact that the Harold War Cells spread through the highest intellectual strata of official Washington—brought to the surface by the Chambers-Hiss case—cannot be ignored. It must be studied, analyzed, debated and a solution found as to how to re-teach America to Americans.

A detailed map of the Snake river, in Idaho, carved by Indians long ago, has been found on a rock on the north side of the Snake, 20 miles from Nampa.

Pro Grids Hush-Hush On Passer

Waterfield Fouls Big Loop 'Peace'

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 — The prospective peace between the two warring major pro football leagues was fouled up a bit, and somewhat mysteriously today by the Bob Waterfield incident.

Waterfield is, or was, the star passer of the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League. The other day he said he was interested in an offer by the New York Yankees of the rival All-America Conference.

The initial reaction to this development was that it would snuff the affairs of the rival leagues worse than a hard knot in a wet shoestring. The two circuits are a far cry from Damon and Pythias, but on the point of raiding stars who have played in the other league, they hitherto have been in agreement.

Today, however, the hush-hush treatment was given to the Waterfield incident by both of the two clubs concerned. The Yankees said they had no knowledge of the proposal to bring Waterfield to New York.

IN LOS ANGELES, President Dan Reeves of the Rams was confident he would have little trouble in signing Robert again. These pronouncements, if taken at face value, would seem to leave Mr. Waterfield dangling on a long and shaky limb.

Waterfield's three-year contract with the Rams calls for $18,000 a year. It expired after last season, and the Rams have until May 1 to pick up an option on the future services of their star passer. The option provides that he get the same wages this year.

According to the original Los Angeles report, the Yankees offered to match the salary figure paid Bob by the Rams.

The New Yorkers need a T-passer after having missed out on Nevada's Stan Heath and Georgia's Johnny Rauch.

Waterfield said the other day that he would like to play in Los Angeles. For one reason, his wife, the beautiful Jane Russell of the films, works there.

European Skimen Grab Top Honors In Beloit Test

BELOIT, Wis., Jan. 10 — Any doubt that European ski jumpers are at home only in their native land was wiped out today by a pint-sized jumper from Finland. Matti Pietikainen leaped 178 and 176 feet yesterday in almost perfect leaps in the Beloit Ski Meet to nose out Olympic Champion Peter Hugstved of Norway by a fraction of a point for top honors in the contest.

Judges awarded Matti 225.85 points over Hugstved's 225.15. Meanwhile, Leo Laakso, the Finnish champion, took third place and chalked up the longest jump of the day with his second try—185 feet.

Thus the Europeans completely overshadowed the Americans in the meet.

They even captured fourth and fifth places respectively as Bengt Jaderholm and Wilhelm Hellman of Sweden helped hand the Scandinavians a clean sweep of first honors in the Class A Division.

Brownies Sign 2 Dixie Linemen

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10 — The Cleveland Browns added two Southern Conference standouts to their roster today in a move to strengthen themselves for defense of their All-America Conference championship in 1949.

The two Southerners are Center Tommy Thompson of William and Mary and Tackle Ted Hazelwood of the University of North Carolina.

Thompson stands six-feet, two-inches tall and weighs 215 pounds. He has been one of the top linemen on the William and Mary grid combines the last four seasons.

Hazelwood, six-one and 220 pounds, was the mainstay of the line for undefeated North Carolina last year. Thompson is 22, Hazelwood 24.

School Offers Scoreboard Use

Circleville high school's electric scoreboard stationed in Fairgrounds Coliseum will be available for use by other basketball teams in the future.

The high school athletic board Monday said other schools playing in the coliseum could use the board, but with one reservation. The board said a member of the Circleville faculty must operate it at all times.

4 Ohio College Teams Remain On Unbeaten List

COLUMBUS, Jan. 10 — Four Ohio teams—Akron, Cincinnati, Wilberforce and Capital—started the second week of 1949 today still undefeated in cage warfare.

Akron rates at the top of the heap with nine straight victories. Cincinnati and Wilberforce State each have snared six wins in a row and Capital is unbeaten in four starts.

Cincinnati, only member of the "big four" scheduled for weekend action, kept its win-streak alive by romping to a 93-65 victory over Western Reserve Saturday night.

The Cincinnati-Reserve struggle was the "big" game on a stout Saturday slate.

Ohio teams won two of three games played against out-of-state opponents. Miami defeated Western Michigan 51-43, and Case dropped Rochester 63-50, but St. Bonaventure took the measure of Youngstown, 56-38.

In all-Ohio games, Penn whipped Hiram 54-45, Otterbein edged Oberlin 57-56, and Ashland trounced Rio Grande 59-52.

While most Ohio teams are taking it easy tonight, Xavier entertains Hanover, Kent State travels to St. Bonaventure and Dayton plays host to Marshall.

Boating Outfit Honoring Trio

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 — Three crack motor boat racing drivers today held special plaques as tokens of esteem from their colleagues.

The nation's leading drivers, who are in New York in connection with the national motor boat show, honored Guy Lombardo, of Freeport, N. Y., Bill Cantrell of Louisville, and Dan Arena of Kent, O., by electing them to motor boating's Hall of Fame at their annual dinner.

Lombardo last year set a new world record of 118 miles per hour for single engine inboard jobs. Cantrell won the Harwood Trophy race at New York. Arena captured top honors in the President's Cup Regatta at Washington, D. C.

Cyclist Injured In Race Spill

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10 — Vernon H. Barnes, 48, former Ohio amateur bicycle racing champion, continued to hover between life and death today following an accident at the six-day Cleveland bike races.

An aide to officials of the 13th annual six-day whirl, Barnes suffered extensive lacerations of the frontal parietal area of the brain and a depressed skull fracture when he was hurled over a wall, landing head first in a row of seats.

He was one of five amateur cyclists, all members of the Cleveland Wheelmen's Club, who took to the track yesterday in Public Hall while the professional riders rode slowly on the "flat" of the track.

Athletic Union Eyes McKenley

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 — The New Jersey Amateur Athletic Union today was considering a request for the suspension of Herb McKenley, who holds the world's record for 400 meters.

The suspension request was made by Dan Ferris, National AAU secretary. Ferris claims that McKenley failed to fulfill an agreement to be in Australia yesterday for races next weekend. McKenley is headed for Australia, but he did not leave New York until Saturday night.

70 Boxers Set For Gloves Meet

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10 — A field of 70 amateur boxers will open the first qualifying tournament of the 21st annual Golden Gloves competition tonight in Canton. Six 1948 champions are entered in the three-night Stark County meet which will wind up Thursday.

SCHNITTKER UPS AVERAGE

Bucks Tagged Underdogs In Tilt With Illinois

CHICAGO, Jan. 10 — Illinois, hot off its mark with two straight Big Nine basketball triumphs, battles to hold its conference lead in the air of the swift, skilled Buckeyes of Ohio State tonight.

By winning, the Illini will have scored their second successive on-the-road victory in a league where traveling performance means everything.

Should Ohio State prevail, however, the Illini will lose the lead, perhaps for good, and the Bucks, possibly together with Minnesota and Purdue, will zoom to the top.

Ohio, Purdue and Minnesota all are undefeated along with Illinois, but they have played only one conference game each while the Illini have played two. Illinois won the conference opener from Wisconsin by 62 to 50 in Champaign last Monday, then Saturday night won out at Indiana in two overtime periods, 44 to 42, when Fred Green produced his only field goal of the game with eight seconds to go.

OHIO MOVED into league play Saturday by squashing

Foul Weather Adding Hazards To Golf Meet

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10 — A prediction of scattered showers, high winds and frigid temperatures constitute added hazards facing a select field of 69 golfers who begin play today in the final round of the $15,000 Los Angeles Open golf tournament.

And if yesterday's astronomical scores, resulting from adverse weather conditions, can be used as criteria, the tournament will be won for the first time in many years by an over-par score.

Four men, Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Cal., Eric Monti of Santa Monica, and Leland Gibson of Kansas City, shared the lead as the tourney neared completion.

The quartet possesses third-round scores of 214. Of the four, Gibson is considered the best all-weather divotter. The graying mid-westerner yesterday fashioned a sensational four-under-par 67.

Ring Promoters Set Up Schedule

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 — All was in readiness today for the scheduled invasion of New York City by the Tournament of Champions of New Jersey, boxing promotional enterprise.

The T. of C. is going to stage indoor bouts in Manhattan Center. The T. of C. also said its first bout at the new arena will be a heavyweight between Rusty Payne of Pittsburgh and Curtis Shepherd of Baltimore. It is scheduled for Jan. 19. The pair met in Pittsburgh recently, with Payne knocking out Shepherd in the ninth round after having been floored himself.

Buck Infielder Is Going Pro

COLUMBUS, Jan. 10 — Ohio State Second Baseman Al Aerni today is a member of the American Association Milwaukee club. Aerni, withdrawn from OSU, reports to Austin, Tex., for Spring training in March.

Northwestern, 68 to 56, in Columbus. Minnesota, only conference team undefeated in non-league play, kept its perfect record intact with a 45 to 31 victory over defending champion Michigan in Minneapolis.

Purdue proved its rating as a team to watch by belting Iowa 73 to 53 on the Hawkeye floor.

Tonight, the Boilermakers return home, where they are tough indeed, to play host to Michigan. Minnesota has another home date, facing Wisconsin in Minneapolis. Iowa and Indiana, who may be doomed this season, can start the consolation tournament with their game in Bloomington.

Although the Illinois-Ohio State game looms as the evening's natural, pitting as it does two undefeated teams, fans in Lafayette and Minneapolis remain hard to convince.

Purdue's Howie Williams is the new fair-haired boy at Lafayette. He tossed in 25 points to lead the way as the Boilermakers handed Iowa its first loss at home in two games.

At Minnesota, Sophomore White Skoog remains the scoring find of the conference. Once again Whitey's eye was on as the Gophers trampled Michigan. He got 16 points, and only his redoubtable teammate, Long Jim McIntyre, could do better, with 20.

Wisconsin had no trouble at all flooring Creighton 75 to 39 in Saturday's lone non-conference game.

OHIO STATE'S squad, which trounced a persistent but easy Northwestern five Saturday night, took over the underdog's spot in their scheduled battle with Illinois.

The Buckeye's Dick Schnittker, whose scoring average has come of age, may have to raise the ante here tonight in facing the Illini.

Coach Tippy Dye's foraging five has compiled a six-to-one record going into their second Western Conference game.

Schnittker's 21-point average rose to 21.7 Saturday night. It compares favorably with the 14.2 of Dike Eddleman, leading Illini ace.

The Walnuts had upset a Fighter Squadron quintet the week before. High scorer for the game was Walnut's Weaver who sent 12 points through the nets.

Pro Grids Hush-Hush On Passer

Waterfield Fools Big Loop 'Peace'

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 — The prospective peace between the two warring major pro football leagues was fouled up a bit, and somewhat mysteriously today by the Bob Waterfield incident.

Waterfield is, or was, the star passer of the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League. The other day he said he was interested in an offer by the New York Yankees of the rival All-America Conference.

The initial reaction to this development was that it would snuff the affairs of the rival leagues worse than a hard knot in a wet shoestring. The two circuits are a far cry from Damon and Pythias, but on the point of raiding stars who have played in the other league, they hitherto have been in agreement.

Today, however, the hush-hush treatment was given to the Waterfield incident by both of the two clubs concerned. The Yankees said they had no knowledge of the proposal to bring Waterfield to New York.

IN LOS ANGELES, President Dan Reeves of the Rams was confident he would have little trouble in signing Robert again. These pronouncements, if taken at face value, would seem to leave Mr. Waterfield dangling on a long and shaky limb.

Waterfield's three-year contract with the Rams calls for $18,000 a year. It expired after last season, and the Rams have until May 1 to pick up an option on the future services of their star passer. The option provides that he get the same wages this year.

According to the original Los Angeles report, the Yankees offered to match the salary figure paid Bob by the Rams.

The New Yorkers need a T-passer after having missed out on Nevada's Stan Heath and Georgia's Johnny Rauch.

Waterfield said the other day that he would like to play in Los Angeles. For one reason, his wife, the beautiful Jane Russell of the films, works there.

European Skimen Grab Top Honors In Beloit Test

BELOIT, Wis., Jan. 10 — Any doubt that European ski jumpers are at home only in their native land was wiped out today by a pint-sized jumper from Finland. Matti Pietikainen leaped 178 and 176 feet yesterday in almost perfect leaps in the Beloit Ski Meet to nose out Olympic Champion Peter Hugsted of Norway by a fraction of a point for top honors in the contest.

Judges awarded Matti 225.85 points over Hugsted's 225.15. Meanwhile, Leo Laakso, the Finnish champion, took third place and chalked up the longest jump of the day with his second try—185 feet.

Thus the Europeans completely overshadowed the Americans in the meet.

They even captured fourth and fifth places respectively as Bengt Jaderholm and Wilhelm Hellman of Sweden helped hand the Scandinavians a clean sweep of first honors in the Class A Division.

Brownies Sign 2 Dixie Linemen

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10 — The Cleveland Browns added two Southern Conference standouts to their roster today in a move to strengthen themselves for defense of their All-America Conference championship in 1949.

The two Southerners are Center Tommy Thompson of William and Mary and Tackle Ted Hazelwood of the University of North Carolina.

Thompson stands six-feet, two-inches tall and weighs 215 pounds. He has been one of the top linemen on the William and Mary grid combines the last four seasons.

Hazelwood, six-one and 220 pounds, was the mainstay of the line for undefeated North Carolina last year. Thompson is 22, Hazelwood 24.

School Offers Scoreboard Use

Circleville high school's electric scoreboard stationed in Fairgrounds Coliseum will be available for use by other basketball teams in the future.

The high school athletic board Monday said other schools playing in the coliseum could use the board, but with one reservation. The board said a member of the Circleville faculty must operate it at all times.

4 Ohio College Teams Remain On Unbeaten List

COLUMBUS, Jan. 10 — Four Ohio teams—Akron, Cincinnati, Wilberforce and Capital—started the second week of 1949 today still undefeated in cage warfare.

Akron rates at the top of the heap with nine straight victories. Cincinnati and Wilberforce State each have snared six wins in a row and Capital is unbeaten in four starts.

Cincinnati, only member of the "big four" scheduled for weekend action, kept its win-streak alive by romping to a 93-65 victory over Western Reserve Saturday night.

The Cincinnati-Reserve struggle was the "big" game on a stout Saturday slate.

Ohio teams won two of three games played against out-of-state opponents. Miami defeated Western Michigan 51-43, and Case dropped Rochester 63-50, but St. Bonaventure took the measure of Youngstown, 56-38.

In all-Ohio games, Fenn whipped Hiram 54-45, Otterbein edged Oberlin 57-56, and Ashland trounced Rio Grande 59-52.

While most Ohio teams are taking it easy tonight, Xavier entertains Hanover, Kent State travels to St. Bonaventure and Dayton plays host to Marshall.

Boating Outfit Honoring Trio

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 — Three crack motor boat racing drivers today held special plaques as tokens of esteem from their colleagues.

The nation's leading drivers, who are in New York in connection with the national motor boat show, honored Guy Lombardo, of Freeport, N. Y., Bill Cantrell of Louisville, and Dan Arena of Kent, O., by electing them to motor boating's Hall of Fame at their annual dinner.

Lombardo last year set a new world record of 118 miles per hour for single engine inboard jobs. Cantrell won the Harwood Trophy race at New York. Arena captured top honors in the President's Cup Regatta at Washington, D. C.

Cyclist Injured In Race Spill

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10 — Vernon H. Barnes, 48, former Ohio amateur bicycle racing champion, continued to hover between life and death today following an accident at the six-day Cleveland bike races.

An aide to officials of the 13th annual six-day whirl, Barnes suffered extensive lacerations of the frontal parietal area of the brain and a depressed skull fracture when he was hurled over a wall, landing head first in a row of seats.

He was one of five amateur cyclists, all members of the Cleveland Wheelmen's Club, who took to the track yesterday in Public Hall while the professional riders rode slowly on the "flat" of the track.

Athletic Union Eyes McKenley

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 — The New Jersey Amateur Athletic Union today was considering a request for the suspension of Herb McKenley, who holds the world's record for 400 meters.

The suspension request was made by Dan Ferris, National AAU secretary. Ferris claims that McKenley failed to fulfill an agreement to be in Australia yesterday for races next week-end. McKenley is headed for Australia, but he did not leave New York until Saturday night.

70 Boxers Set For Gloves Meet

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10 — A field of 70 amateur boxers will open the first qualifying tournament of the 21st annual Golden Gloves competition tonight in Canton.

Six 1948 champions are entered in the three-night Stark County meet which will wind up Thursday.

SCHNITTKER UPS AVERAGE

Bucks Tagged Underdogs In Tilt With Illinois

CHICAGO, Jan. 10 — Illinois, hot off its mark with two straight Big Nine basketball triumphs, battles to hold its conference lead in the air of the swift, skilled Buckeyes of Ohio State tonight.

By winning, the Illini will have scored their second successive on-the-road victory in a league where traveling performance means everything.

Should Ohio State prevail, however, the Illini will lose the lead, perhaps for good, and the Bucks, possibly together with Minnesota and Purdue, will zoom to the top.

Ohio, Purdue and Minnesota all are undefeated along with Illinois, but they have played only one conference game each while the Illini have played two. Illinois won the conference opener from Wisconsin by 62 to 50 in Champaign last Monday, then Saturday night won out at Indiana in two overtime periods, 44 to 42, when Fred Green produced his only field goal of the game with eight seconds to go.

OHIO MOVED into league play Saturday by squashing

Foul Weather Adding Hazards To Golf Meet

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10 — A prediction of scattered showers, high winds and frigid temperatures constitute added hazards facing a select field of 69 golfers who begin play today in the final round of the $15,000 Los Angeles Open golf tournament.

And if yesterday's astronomical scores, resulting from adverse weather conditions, can be used as criteria, the tournament will be won for the first time in many years by an over-par score.

Four men, Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Cal., Eric Monti of Santa Monica, and Leland Gibson of Kansas City, shared the lead as the tourney neared completion.

The quartet possesses third-round scores of 214. Of the four, Gibson is considered the best all-weather divotter. The gray-haired mid-westerner yesterday fashioned a sensational four-under-par 67.

Ring Promoters Set Up Schedule

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 — All was in readiness today for the scheduled invasion of New York City by the Tournament of Champions of New Jersey, boxing promotional enterprise.

The T. of C. is going to stage indoor bouts in Manhattan Center.

The T. of C. also said its first bout at the new arena will be a heavyweight between Rusty Payne of Pittsburgh and Curtis Shepherd of Baltimore. It is scheduled for Jan. 19. The pair met in Pittsburgh recently, with Payne knocking out Shepherd in the ninth round after having been floored himself.

Buck Infielder Is Going Pro

COLUMBUS, Jan. 10 — Ohio State Second Baseman Al Aerni today is a member of the American Association Milwaukee club. Aerni, withdrawn from OSU, reports to Austin, Tex., for Spring training in March.

Ex-Servicemen Soon To Get Official Insurance Policies

Vets' Aide Details VA Program

5 'Helpful Hints'
Given By Shea

Pickaway County veterans, who subscribed to the National Service Life Insurance while in service, soon will receive their policies from the Veterans' Administration.

According to James P. Shea, county service officer, the VA office now is in the process of issuing the documents.

Shea said many veterans probably will be puzzled as to why there will be no designation of beneficiary or mode of settlement included in the policy.

He explained that the VA had eliminated that procedure since many veterans will change their beneficiaries and method of payment before the policy is terminated.

Therefore the VA has set up an extensive system which will validate all changes in policies, but which will not require endorsement on the policy itself.

THE SERVICE officer said that any vet wanting to change his policy may obtain a form from his office showing what changes he desires, and the form will be forwarded to the VA office to be filed.

He said the veteran need not necessarily obtain the form, although that method is most desired, but may notify the VA by a personal letter, identifying himself, giving his policy number and the changes wanted.

Shea also offered five "helpful hints" for veterans who wish to reinstate lapsed National Service Life Insurance term policies. They are:

1. If possible, the policy should be reinstated before it has been lapsed longer than three months. In most cases, early reinstatements make qualifying physical examinations unnecessary.

2. All questions on the reinstatement application should be answered. Failure to do so means a delay in regaining insurance protection.

3. The application must be dated. If not dated, it is not valid.

4. The application must be mailed to VA within five days. If the postmark is later than five days of the date on the application, a new form will be required.

5. Two monthly payments required for reinstatement must accompany the application. Without premium payments, VA cannot reinstate the insurance.

Court Upholds Local Decision

The decision of Judge Sterling M. Lamb in Pickaway County probate court has been upheld by the Fourth District court of appeals in a case of alleged concealment of assets.

Don C. Bartholomew, administrator of the Emma C. Bartholomew estate, filed a petition claiming A. W. Kirkpatrick of New Holland concealed certain assets in the sale of 12 crypts in a 35-crypt mausoleum.

Judge Lamb ruled against Bartholomew last March and the plaintiff appealed the court's decision. The case was presented to the three-judge court of appeals without oral argument.

Lithopolis Scene For Twin Rites

Funeral services are scheduled for Wednesday afternoon for a 23-year-old Marine veteran and his 22-year-old wife who died in a plane crash Saturday afternoon.

George W. and Anna Lee Norris will be buried at Lithopolis. Mrs. Norris died instantly when their Taylorcraft crashed while the couple was circling a fox hunt at tree-top altitude near Lancaster.

Her husband died Saturday evening in Lancaster City hospital.

The plane fell in the center of a group of foxhunters, who were forming a circle around their quarry 500 yards from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Watts.
